

Notes on Contributors

ARTHUR GAMMAGE has qualifications in civil engineering and urban planning and served in the provincial roads department and the architecture department of the Durban City Council. In retirement he works as a heritage consultant.
Gammage@mweb.co.za

ROWAN GATFIELD is a South African researcher and currently a full-time, senior lecturer at the Department of Illustration at the University of Lincoln. As a graphic designer and visual anthropologist, his research focus over the last ten years has been centred on poverty alleviation through micro/craft economies in the KwaZulu-Natal region.
RGatfield@lincoln.ac.uk

NOSIPHO GWALA is a research officer for uMsunduzi and Ncome museums where she educates the public about cultural heritage. Her educational background includes a Bachelor of Social Science degree majoring in Psychology and Sociology and a Bachelor of Social Science (Honours) degree in Sociology, both from the University of KwaZulu-Natal, Pietermaritzburg.
ngwala@msunduzimuseum.org.za

MICHELE JACOBS is librarian and archivist at the Architecture Technical Reference Library in the School of Built Environment and Development Studies at University of KwaZulu-Natal. She has degrees in Information Science (UNISA) and Art History (UKZN) and is currently registered for a PhD in Art History focusing on the colonial domestic architecture of Durban.
gijimajacobs@gmail.com

ELWYN JENKINS is a professor emeritus in the Department of English Studies at the University of South Africa. At the age of 15 in 1954 he published his first article entitled 'Some of the beliefs and customs of the Bushmen'. His article 'A San child of the Drakensberg and other child exiles' was published in Natalia 48 (2018).
ejenkins@iuncapped.co.za

CHRISTOPHER MERRETT worked as a librarian at the universities of London, Cape Town and Natal; and then as campus administrator at the University of KwaZulu-Natal, Pietermaritzburg. He completed his formal working life as a journalist at the Witness. During the State of Emergency in the 1980s he was a member of the Detainees Support Committee.
kitteddyhall@gmail.com

ILANA VAN WYK is an anthropologist and works at the University of Stellenbosch. She is the former editor-in-chief of Anthropology Southern Africa and the author of A Church of Strangers: The Universal Church of the Kingdom of God in South Africa (Cambridge University Press).
Ilanavw@sun.ac.za

DEBBIE WHELAN is editor of Natalia. She is interested in cultural change, particularly in the built environment. She trained as an architect and anthropologist and currently holds a teaching post in the School of Architecture and the Built Environment at the University of Lincoln in Britain.
debbie@archaic.co.za

JOHN WRIGHT lectured in history at the universities of Natal and KwaZulu-Natal. His prime field of research is the making of ideas about southern Africa's past before colonial times. He is one of the editors of The James Stuart Archive of Recorded Oral Evidence Relating to the History of the Zulu and Neighbouring Peoples. He is an honorary research associate in the Archive and Public Culture Research Initiative at the University of Cape Town, and currently lives in Johannesburg.
johnbwright99@gmail.com